In general it appears violence decreased, but the percentage of students who were absent from school because of safety concerns increased.